Market Outlook and Investment

US Fed reiterated that US economy continued growing at the expected pace and Fed will increase interest rate within this year. Strong US dollar combined with weak commodity prices, which has helped to bolster further rally of US market.

China's CPI and PPI figures have been weak for more than 2 years, which indicated that China's economy is actually in the stage of deflation. PBOC has further cut the interest rate by 25bps at the end of February. We believe that further rate cuts will follow. Given that China's economy has entered into the "new normal" era, we would like to focus on the sectors which shall be beneficiaries of economic restructuring and reforms.
